You know me--I don't like giving up when I get an idea so, I laid out how Rome COULD work. It could be our special secret:)

Saturday evening, June 11th--we leave on a non stop from Chicago to Rome. There won't be Carmel people leaving from Chicago. It is a nine hour flight and we jump ahead six hours so we would get to Rome about 9 am Rome time on Sunday, June 12. I have personal points (I put everything I buy on my Amex and let the points accumulate). It will be business class so we get good food, wine and seats that turn into flat beds:) We would spend Sunday exploring Rome. The conference goes from Monday, June 13 through Friday June 17. I have to speak of course and go to some of the sessions but certainly not all of them. I pay no registration fees because I am speaking. You can explore by yourself or come to the sessions if you choose. I need to Stuttgart, Germany on Friday the 17th. You can fly back on Saturday, June 18th and only miss one week at work. I will go on to Stuttgart and come back on Wednesday, June 22 and be in on the office on Thursday June 22. We will be returning five days apart from one another. No one will think twice about it here. Anyway, that could be the plan. I am not using city money for any of it. We use my points for both flights and I will have a hotel regardless. Life should be an adventure and there's no one I would rather explore with than you.

Dear Jim,

I am very glad I can count on you to give a keynote! Carmel is such a dramatic case study. I think what you are creating will be environmentally, fiscally --

It is certainly appropriate to give a brief historic context, but that is not the main story. The main story is the principles that provide the foundation for the c and transportation solutions that are arising out of those principles; and the social and economic life that this new urban fabric is generating.

You may have published or spoken about the guiding principles before, but I don't think I have seen them. As an example of what I am talking about, I att New Urban Neighborhood" and "The Freiburg Statement on New Urban Neighborhoods". The Statement was the conclusions based on presentations an Neighborhoods in Freiburg. Both of these were published in our book Making Cities Livable. Do you have this book? It is very relevant for Carmel.

I think a statement about the principles guiding Carmel's development, illustrated by what you have actually achieved, would be very powerful!

Please do stay at the Hotel Columbus. Most of the other board members and I will be staying there. It is a beautiful hotel very close to the conference ver

I attach the hotel reservation form. Please make your reservation directly with the hotel as soon as possible. I have sent this information to all the register of rooms available for us so it will fill up quickly.
